Selassie's Palace at Dessye Bombed, But Emperor Escapes

12 Killed, Hundreds Wounded in Italian Air Raid—Ethiopians Begin Their Crucial Battle

WITH EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE at Dessye, Ethiopia.—(Copyright Associated Press)—Nine Italian planes bombed this town Friday, destroying the emperor's palace, wrecking his office and one ward of the American Seventh Day Adventist hospital.

The casualties were heavy among the civilian population, but the emperor was uninjured.

Approximately 12 persons were killed and 200 wounded in the air raid.

Emperor Selassie himself used a machine-gun in an effort to beat off the attack.

The Associated Press correspondent saw many women and children among the killed and wounded. The American hospital was evacuated a few minutes before the raid. The Italian planes smashed more than 1,000 bombs into the city.

In the meantime, an official Italian communiqué reported 24 Ethiopians and three Italians dead in an intensified combat between patrols along the northern front.

This outbreak of hostilities, two months after the start of the war, was interpreted by Italian officers as marking the beginning of the first Ethiopian offensive.

S. F. Huntley Kills Self; Tortured by Cancer for Years

Devout Churchman Spends His Last Night on Earth in Prayer

FUNERAL SATURDAY

Tragedy Writes End for Hope Man Suffering Incurable Illness

S. F. Huntley, 76, former grocery store operator, and justice of the peace, shot and killed himself early Friday morning at his home, 218 North Hamilton street.

Coroner J. H. Weaver viewed the body and returned a verdict of suicide. No inquest was held.

Torment by a cancer of long duration is believed to have caused Mr. Huntley's act. It was reported that he had slept but little the past two nights.

A devout church worker, he spent a great deal of Thursday night in prayer. About 5:30 a. m. Friday he went to the back porch. There he obtained a single-barreled shotgun and shot himself.

Born in North Carolina, he moved to Arkansas in 1892, settling in Cleveland county. From there he moved to Hope in 1919. For several years he operated a grocery store and served as a justice of the peace.

He served as a member of the Hempstead County Equalization Board three terms. He was a member of the First Baptist church and a devoted Christian. He joined the church when a young man.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Saturday from the family residence, 218 North Hamilton. The Rev. Wallace R. Rogers, pastor of First Baptist church, is expected to be in charge.

Surviving are his widow, three sons, Fulton Huntley of Santa Ana, Calif.; J. P. Huntley of Shanghai, China; B. C. Huntley of Fordyce; five daughters, Mrs. J. E. Hunt of Santa Ana, Calif.; Mrs. T. H. King of Fort Worth, Texas; Miss Annie Huntley of New Orleans, La.; Mrs. Mary H. Joeger of Lafayette, La.; Mrs. J. R. Rhodes of Arkadelphia.

Liquor Permits Are Cancellable

Half-Year Term Recognized as Ending December 31 If Desired

LITTLE ROCK.—The state revenue commissioner has authority to cancel liquor permits December 31 in cases where the dealer applied for a year's permit, but paid only half the annual fee, the attorney general's office ruled Thursday.

The 1935 liquor law provided that after July 1 only annual permits could be issued, but gave dealers the option of paying the license fee in equal installments July 1 and January 1. In

Jersey Reopening Hauptmann's Case

Noted Detective Opposing State's Theory of Kidnap

Governor Hoffman Reveals That Ellis Parker Is Investigating

INTERVIEWS BRUNO

Jersey Governor Reveals He Paid Visit to Prisoner in Death-House

TRENTON, N. J.—(AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman said Friday that Ellis Parker, noted Burlington county detective, "is under the impression that Hauptmann is not the man" responsible for the Lindbergh kidnap murder.

Hoffman said that Parker was called into the case by Governor Moore, Hoffman's predecessor, when the kidnapping occurred.

"He's been working on it ever since," Hoffman said.

The fact that Parker is quietly conducting an investigation was revealed Thursday, a few hours before Governor Hoffman disclosed that he had paid a nocturnal visit some time ago to Hauptmann in his death-house cell at the state prison.

"Blocked," Claim
The governor said he understood that Parker attempted to investigate the case along with state police, but was "blocked" in his efforts by the troopers.

Those who were at Hopewell in the days immediately following the kidnapping, recalled that Parker was present at the Lindbergh estate for several days, and then left. Reports at the time had it that he and the chief investigating officials were not in agreement.

The governor said he understood that Parker "had never been given access to the state police records" in the kidnapping case.

"Parker has a great reputation and usually is correct," said Egbert Rosenkrans, one of the defense attorneys, commenting on the governor's statement regarding Parker.

"When the case was different theory from the state. The case certainly presents mysterious angles. Parker is well qualified to study them."

The latest development in the Lindbergh case did not excite Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, New Jersey state police superintendent, who directed the original investigation.

He indicated he had known of it by saying, "We blocked no investigation."

Other official figures in the investigation, it was learned, regarded the current excitement as a passing "fever."

Cult Holds Polygamy Is Only Way to "Three-Level Heaven"

Religious Creed in Clash With Law; to Trial Monday

Inhabitants of "Desert Paradise" to Be Tried at Kingman, Ariz.

COLONY TOTALS 100

"Plural Wife" Written on U. S. Application Leads to Investigation

KINGMAN, Ariz.—(NEA)—Manmade laws will clash with a creed upheld by its adherents as divinely revealed when three members of a cult branded as polygamists go on trial in superior court here December 9.

Grim determination to go to prison rather than surrender their faith is voiced by Mrs. Sylvia Alfred Spencer, comely mother of four sons; I. R. Spencer, her husband; and Price Johnson.

The cultists are firm in belief that heaven is a paradise of three levels, the uppermost of which can be attained only by a man who weds many wives.

Marriage, they believe, is for all time and a man takes his wives to heaven with him. If he marries but once, he and his spouse reach only the first level of heaven and are denied complete happiness.

If a woman remains single, she will become a servant forever.

All this was divinely revealed to Joseph Smith, founder of Mormonism, they contend, in which it was decreed that "men propagate the earth for him." To obey this command, they hold, a man must take a plurality of wives and rear many children or be damned for all time.

With the fiery fervor of a zealot, the "bishop" of the sect, John Y. Barlow, declares that monogamy—marriage of one man to one woman—is doomed. The polygamists will inherit the earth, he preaches.

"Abraham took more than one wife; so did David and Solomon and many others," he argues.

While the defendants in the case deny that they have been living their creed, they declare they "gladly tell the world of their deep conviction that only in polygamy lies supreme happiness."

Leave Utah
Just over the line from Utah, these colonists settled when they broke with the Mormon church after federal and ecclesiastical bans were placed on polygamy. There they built their homes in the frontier village of Short Creek, Ariz., in a sagebrush valley beneath towering peaks.

They live under a semi-communistic form of government, sharing the proceeds of their harvests and the community sawmill, pooling the money which they brought to their new home.

More than 45 children are in the colony of approximately 100 souls, nearly dressed, well-nourished youngsters who are as fervent in their devotion to the creed as are their elders.

In this wilderness outpost, members of the cult had hoped to live unmolested, but the law delved into the life of the community when colonists promoted an irrigation project. They asked federal aid and several of the applications were signed by women designated as "plural wives."

Investigation and arrests followed, to be climaxed by the trial of three of the six against whom grand jury action was taken, the other three having vanished.

Arizona having no polygamy law, they are charged with "open and notorious cohabitation."

Reinforce Soviet Union
PRAHA.—(AP)—Ten new airplane fields, characterized in unofficial quarters as military strategic, are to be built by the Czechoslovakian government. This was revealed by publication of the war budget which is a fifth higher than last year.

The fields are to be built chiefly in the Eastern part of the country. It generally is believed they are intended for use by the Russian and Rumanian air forces in case of war.

The recent Czech-Russian treaty gave the Soviet Union the right to use Czech fields in case the two armies are called upon to fight an aggressor.

Cheese Plant to Be Installed as Soon as Site Is Found

Kraft Phenix Corporation Returning Here After Withdrawal in 1930

PERMANENT PLANT

First Experiment, Plus New Survey, Confirms This as Dairy Country

The Kraft Phenix Cheese corporation is returning to Hope immediately with a modern cheese plant having a daily capacity of 50,000 pounds of whole milk, or 5,000 pounds of cheese.

The Star learned this from an authoritative source Friday. The report is expected to be confirmed by an official company statement within a few days.

The cheese corporation, largest in the world, has completed a three-week survey of milk production in Hempstead and adjoining counties. F. Berry, field agent with headquarters in Kansas City, conducted the survey, on the basis of which the Kraft Phenix company resolved to re-enter the local field.

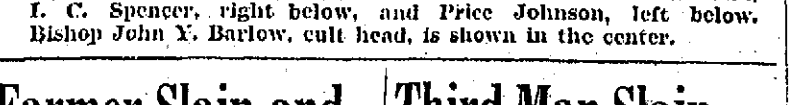

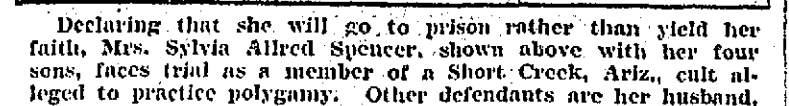

Kraft executives will be here within a few days to inspect plant locations. Location of the cheese plant in Hope will depend on obtaining a suitable building at a satisfactory price. Once the building has been arranged for, the cheese factory equipment will be shipped here immediately.

The Kraft Phenix corporation assumed operation of a cheese plant in Hope in 1929 and operated it for 13 months. Hope citizens putting up the money for the machinery, and the Kraft company financing the operations, in the face of the panic conditions existing in 1930 the corporation withdrew, and the plant subsequently was sold to private dairy business.

The Star is reliably informed that the cheese company was forced by national conditions to withdraw from the local field despite a steady and satisfactory gain in local milk production offered on the local whole-milk market.

The Kraft company, The Star understands, is returning to Hope with its own plant, is asking no local aid whatsoever, and is installing a permanent cheese factory—the company being convinced that southwest Arkansas is an assured dairy-development country.

Declaring that she will go to prison rather than yield her faith, Mrs. Sylvia Alfred Spencer, shown above with her four sons, faces trial as a member of a Short Creek, Ariz., cult alleged to practice polygamy. Other defendants are her husband, I. C. Spencer, right below, and Price Johnson, left below. Bishop John Y. Barlow, cult head, is shown in the center.

Farmer Slain and Children Beaten

Daughter Rushes Into Room to Find Tragedy, Near Van Buren, Ark.

VAN BUREN, Ark.—(AP)—C. V. Martin, 48, Crawford county farmer, was shot to death and four children were beaten with a hammer at their farm home near here Thursday night.

Mrs. Rena Davis, who said she was Martin's daughter, said she heard a shot and rushed into the room. She found her father dead and the children unconscious, all with skull fractures.

Martin, a widower, had been in ill health. The children's condition is critical.

Third Man Slain in Jail Roundup

Dan Heady Killed, Dewey Gilmore Taken in Flight at McAlester, Okla.

McALESTER, Okla.—(AP)—Dan Heady, one of five federal prisoners who broke from the Muskogee jail, was slain, and Dewey Gilmore, his companion, was captured at a farm home near Weathers, Okla., early Friday.

Five shots were fired in a sudden encounter with pursuing possemen, two striking Heady, who was leader of the Southwest's most dangerous outlaw law since the slaying of Pretty Boy Floyd.

Heady and Gilmore were members of the Walter O'Malley gang of bank robbers and kidnappers.

Heady's death is the third in connection with the jail-break. Two fugitives, Leonard Short and Don Garrett remain at large.

Harrison Speaks to Kiwanis Club

'Salesmanship' His Theme—Club to Entertain Football Men

The Rev. Fred R. Harrison spoke at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club Thursday night at Hotel Barlow. His subject was "Salesmanship." The Rev. Mr. Harrison brought out many interesting pointers on the art of selling.

It was announced at the meeting that the club would sponsor a barbecue and squirrel-stew at Fair park next Thursday night, December 12, in honor of the football squad, the coaches and the boys' band. Oliver Williams, Dewey Hendrix and Claude Nunn were appointed as a committee to make arrangements.

Joe Floyd, new president of the club, announced the appointment of W. S. Atkins as secretary of the club. The program was in charge of Ralph Bulley.

Old Monastery Is Brewster's Theme

Trappist Institution in Kentucky Described for Rotary Club

A Trappist monastery at Gethsemane, Ky., housing one of the three North American units of this offspring of the ancient Cistercian order of the Catholic Middle Ages, was described for Hope Rotarians Friday by the Rev. Thomas Brewster.

The Rev. Mr. Brewster held several pastorates in Kentucky before taking the pulpit of First Presbyterian church of Hope, and is widely versed in the history of the Blue Grass state.

He told the Rotarians that the Trappist monks operate a 3,000-acre farm, live in the severest simplicity, and hold among their historical treasures some priceless articles. One of these is the first hymn-book ever to be brought to the New World. And there are paintings by the great masters.

Women are forbidden to enter this bit of the Old World located there in the heart of the Blue Grass state.

Nick Jewell announced to the club that the annual Rotary banquet for the football team would be held at Hotel Barlow at 7 o'clock Monday night, with Ivan Grove, Hendrix coach, as the guest speaker.

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Dieting "Courses" Spread Misleading Facts About Food and Disease

The many peculiar ideas about diet do not stop with these notions alone. They go on, in many cases, to what are termed "courses" on dieting, actual training regimens that are being advertised widely and sold to people who are still unaware of what diet can actually do in the body.

Most of these courses consist of anywhere from 12 to 24 lessons which are mailed to the purchaser with the understanding that he is getting some real secrets about what diet can do for him.

The courses contain a great deal of material about auto-intoxication. This is a misnomer, if ever there was one, because scientific doctors no longer even use the word.

They also say a great deal about the fact that the body becomes congested with a great deal of undigested and decaying food material and that this is exceedingly poisonous. This statement is untrue.

One of these writers goes so far as to say that grapefruit and tomatoes will dissolve tumors, gallstones and blood clots when, of course, everybody who gives the matter a moment's thought knows that neither grapefruit nor tomatoes, singly or together, will do any such thing.

There is a health school out west, which promotes the idea that there is no such thing as infectious disease and that all disease comes from wrong eating.

The promoters of this school say that toxemia is the most dangerous everything else. But it also gives you a new admiration of the tough pioneer spirit.

Published by Little, Brown & Co., it sells for $3.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Watching a college boy walking down street one day in a barrel I thought he was either being hosed or he had been in swimming and lost his clothes.

He was whistling to keep up his courage and looking as nonchalant as possible under the circumstances. He was looking TOO complacent, however. So one day later, when I met his mother, busybody that I am, I inquired:

"He is being punished," she enlightened me. "He walked across the campus where it is forbidden. The seniors forbid it and he is a freshman. He forgot. So they got out the barrel, a regular custom, and he has to wear it for a week, wherever he goes."

Shortly after I noticed another green-caped freshman carrying on his shoulder, half of an old metal bed. He, too, was whistling and trying to appear as if everything was just lovely. Possibly he had infringed on other territory, and the old iron top was the price.

Source Carries Weight

Now if these youths had been so punished by their parents there would have been a battle royal. Either they would not have left the house or they would have disappeared for good. It goes to prove that both small and grown children will accept a penalty from certain sources that they would not from others.

A lot depends upon age, too. Small children with motive so hidden from the grown-up mind often feel completely outraged by unreasonable punishments at home. Inflict the same on an older brother or sister and their sense of justice will probably accept what comes without rancor.

Therefore it seems to be the wise course for parents to think over this matter of retribution.

First of all, small children suffer more from shame than older ones. Nothing can undermine self-respect for all time more quickly than shaming in public. The public may be only the rest of the family or Aunt Lottie and Uncle Jack. It does not follow that quick and swift retribution is not necessary at times, public or none, but the less it happens the better.

Punishment Beyond Deserts

There is the outrageous punishment. A child's own sense of justice gives him a fair idea of reasonable pay-off for what he has done. To hurt him beyond reason, to disgrace him, to scare him by tying or shutting him in a closet, not only damage his emotional content but set up an antagonism against rule and authority.

If society is going to demand retribution far beyond his deserts, figures the child, then he is finished with it. Parents include both small and grown children will accept a penalty from certain sources that they would not from others.

To make the punishment fit the crime, and to fit the child according to age and disposition is the sensible course.

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

"A sensible diet, proper exercise and plenty of activity are the only secrets for losing weight and keeping fit," declares Donald Loomis who trains an important group of rising young stars for the strenuous studio and social life of Hollywood. "You seldom see active people who are overweight. However, even these need to do some kind of exercise to keep their bodies supple and their posture perfect."

In these facts is the secret of keeping fit for the demands of the busy holiday season, with its merrymaking, dancing and dining.

Mr. Loomis goes on to say that it is not only possible but quite simple for one to eat moderate portions of all the food she likes and still lose weight. Providing, of course, she is active and does light, quick exercises every day.

In other words, he advises all beauty minded women to live regularly, eat what they like, but not too much of it—and keep moving!

"Never lie down after eating," the Hollywood trainer continues. "Get up and keep moving. Fat people sit too much and ride in taxis when they should be walking. Don't drink water during a meal. Don't eat just before going to bed. Exercise twice a day, morning and evening, if only for five minutes each time."

German Churchmen Alleged 'Traitors'

But Nazi Edicts Violate Liberty, Protestant Churches Assert

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—Leaders of Germany's Protestant Confessional (opposition) Synod were said Thursday night to expect wholesale arrests after receiving notification that their opposition to the Nazi administration of churches constitute treason.

Chief Hartmann of the church affairs section of the secret police told the Rev. Gerhard Jacob, president of the Berlin Synod, and the Rev. Peter Scharf, president of the Brandenburg Synod, that the joint action of their Synods Wednesday was treasonable.

The Berlin-Brandenburg group declared opposition to an official edict removing administrative rights from church groups opposing the government's administration.

The two pastors were warned that any further steps in the direction in which the confessional Synod leaders are moving would be dealt with and punished as "high treason."

Hartmann, wearing the uniform of the Schutz Staffeln, or Nazi picked guard, said he acted upon orders from Hans Kerrl, Nazi head of church affairs.

A group of 180 Lutheran delegates has signed a resolution Wednesday saying the edict "violates the internal life of the church and its freedom in expounding God's word."

Rep. Pilkinton Against Taxation

Says Act Claimed Public Donations Would Finance

Representative I. L. Pilkinton of Hempstead county, in a letter to Governor Fretwell Tuesday, advises that he does not favor any increase in taxation, either on motorists or any one else, for the purpose of obtaining funds with which to finance the State Centennial next year.

It has been proposed that the governor call a special session of the General Assembly and either increase the 50-cent drivers' license to $1.00 or find some other means of taxation in order to finance the Centennial program.

Mr. Pilkinton states that Act. 180

Search Begun for Redfern in Jungle

Friend Backs Aerial Expedition Into South American Interior

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana.—(AP)—A search in the jungles of Dutch Guiana for Paul Redfern, American aviator who has been missing eight years, was under way Thursday night.

Art Williams and Art Wendt, who left here in a flying boat Wednesday for Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, hoped to find an Indian guide who reported he had seen Redfern in the interior.

Redfern vanished while attempting a nonstop solo flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Rio de Janeiro in August, 1927.

S. E. Sill, Georgetown business man who is sponsoring the rescue party, believes Redfern is living among savages on the border between Dutch Guiana and Brazil. He expressed the opinion that the flier was crippled as his plane fell, and that the Indians consider him a god.

William Lavarre, American explorer, recently said he believed Redfern had been adopted by the Tio Indians, whom he said he had visited in 30 years.

Lavarre, during his explorations, found pieces of wreckage which he thought were from Redfern's plane.

An Indian who came to a settlement on the Tapanahony river reported that a white man in the village of Sapukunu was being carried about because he had a broken hip.

Tom Rooh, a German-American, declared last spring he had talked to Redfern, but that his Indian guides would not assist him in removing the American.

LETTERS to the Editor

This is your newspaper. Write to it. Letters criticizing the editorial policy or commenting upon facts in the news columns are equally welcome. Choose a topic everyone will be interested in. Be brief. Avoid personal abuse. The world's greatest critics were painfully polite. Every writer must sign his name and address.

From Mr. Timberlake

Editor The Star: On the front page of your paper in a recent issue you displayed in large black letters this startling news, "Liquor sales 64 per cent of 1917."

Now I with you had unfolded the full picture of the liquor consumption, but as you did not, permit me to do so for the benefit of your readers. The consumption of liquor since repeal has steadily increased notwithstanding your assertion to the contrary. A full year after repeal Mr. Choat, who is head of the alcoholic department of our government, acknowledged that the consumption of liquor had increased two hundred per cent. Now permit me to add this recent liquor news. "Treasury department figures show the consumption of both domestic and foreign liquors still registering increases that had their inception at midnight two years ago. An index was the 7,075,979 gallons consumed in October, a million gallons more than in September and nearly two millions more than in October one year ago."

According to the Associated Press news Arkansas' death rate from alcohol has increased three hundred per cent. Now as Andy says to Amos, "What causes this?" If there is less liquor being drunk why the alcoholic death rate increases? Is it because legalize liquor is more deadly than bootleg liquors, or is it because the shoe is on the other foot and just don't amount to anything?

Now, Mr. Editor, let us see if we can not figure out this seeming contradiction of figures. You took 1917, the high peak year of the old saloon days and compared it with today, but remember in those days great distilleries and breweries were running at full blast manufacturing hundreds of millions of gallons of intoxicants. Saloons running up to nearly two hundred thousand in all, were found at the county crossroads and on the prominent corners of every village, town and city. Intoxicants were sold and drunk publicly by men and women in hotel city, in country clubs, and on dining cars. In those days the saloon had become a cunningly devised and marvelously effective educational agency.

It sought through all kinds of appeal to draw men and especially young men into the circle of its influence and to lead them to develop the drinking habit. Brilliant lights, gaudy furnishings, gay fellowship, the custom of treating, games, gambling parlors, dance halls, lewd women, through all these it sought to attract the unwary and induce them to adopt the vice upon which it thrived. But national own mixed emotions told her this. Occasionally she saw Ronnie. Invariably he looked hurt and miserable, and kept away from her.

Other young men were telephoning, taking Dana to dinner and dances. Ted Stansbury was devoted. Roger Jerome, who was spending the summer with cousins, was openly adoring. He had reached such an abject stage that Nancy had dubbed him "Roger-on-his-knees."

"And he might be a good catch, Dana," Nancy suggested cynically. "I hear the Jeromes are among the upper crust in New York, with plenty of money, too."

Dana didn't want Roger—suave, sophisticated Roger. She didn't want Ted either. Men, she had decided, were disappointing.

The College Club dance had rolled around again. Dana thought of it without interest.

"There's a surprise program that's going to be awfully clever," Nancy told her.

NANCY, for some reason, was in a friendly mood these days. Not enthusiastically friendly, but the veiled antagonism of weeks before was missing. Nancy was looking happier, too.

"What kind of program?" Dana asked.

"The entertainment committee has landed a group of vaudeville performers who were big hits in New York all last season. They were on tour and missed a train or something!"

Dana said absently, "That's fine."

"All the members will probably turn out," Nancy stated with assurance. "It's not often the College Club does things in a big way, and they'll want plenty of cheers from the home crew."

All the members of the club. Suddenly Dana was tense. Scott was a member and would be there. Not that that made any difference because Dana had been hoping passionately that she'd never see him again.

But just the same, she felt as though a dull weight she had been carrying had been lifted.

"You look simply awful!" Roger said when Dana came down the stairs. "Let me be the first to tell you so."

"Silly," said Dana. But she was pleased. Not because the flattery was particularly welcome from Roger. She wanted to look nice. If Scott were to be there, she wanted to look—well, her best. Not crushed and wilted by his neglect, as he probably expected to find her.

"Gosh, what a mob," Roger said, maneuvering for a position among hundreds of cars. "Looks as though they really have packed them in this time."

All around there was laughter. Girls in filmy frocks, beside tuxedoed escorts, strolled along the driveway toward the entrance.

And then suddenly Dana's heart was racing faster. She saw Paula Long in copper chifon, going up the steps. Someone stepped in front of Dana so that she could not see the man beside Paula. A moment later neither Paula nor her escort was in sight.

If God Forgo

If God forgot the world for just one day,
Then little children would not laugh and play;
Birds would not in the woodlands sing,
And roses would not beautify the spring.
No gentle showers throughout the summer long,
No autumn fields to cheer the heart with song,
No rising sun, no moon to give its light,
No placid lake reflect the stars of night.
No friend to help us on the toilsome road,
No one to help us bear the heavy load,
No light to shine upon the pilgrim way,
No one to care, or wipe the tear away.
No listening ear to hear the lost one call,
No eye to see the Righteous battler fall,
No balm of Gilead to dull the throbbing pain,
No one to comfort and the heart sustain.
Millions would die in unforgetting sin,
With none to bring the lost and straying in;
Yea, this great universe would melt away.
If God forgot the world for just one day—

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: Nehemiah 4:6-9, 15-21
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for December 8

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

Despite Nehemiah's zeal, the task of rebuilding Jerusalem proceeded slowly, and it is doubtful what night might have been the issue had not Ezra, the priest, received reinforcements from an unexpected quarter.

Nehemiah was a Jew born in exile who had never seen Jerusalem. He occupied a place of prominence at the court of Babylon where he was cup-bearer to the king.

The effect, apparently, was immediate, and "it came to pass" became symbolic of Nehemiah and his achievement. Apparently he brought few, if any, associates to Jerusalem, but he inspired those who were already there, and who were discouraged and beaten in their task, with a new spirit and hope.

In civil, military, and administrative leadership he became what Ezra was to the people in a spiritual way. He organized the people against their enemies, dividing them into those who bore arms and defended, while the other half built the broken walls of the city.

It is a striking picture of how even those who built performed their work with their swords belted to them, ready for immediate action.

Nehemiah's enemies, when they found they could not break down his defensive and constructive measures, sought to enter by his strategy. They desired him to come outside of the city for conference; but he sensed their purpose and refused to come down from his task of building.

When his enemies corrupted the professed prophets, who warned him of danger to his life and urged him to a conference in the temple where his enemies were evidently preparing to take him, Nehemiah showed himself as much above fear as he was above any other ailment.

He stands as a noble figure of history, a man with all the idealism and earnestness of his race in mind and heart, incorruptible, firm in will and selfish and devoted to the common weal.

When complaint arose that the stronger and wealthier among the Jews were exploiting their fellows, robbing them of their lands through mortgage loans and other devices, Nehemiah acted with decisiveness, but with a purpose, also, to lead men to right action through sound principles rather than by drastic and dictatorial methods.

Such selfish exploitation under his influence became a disgrace, and the new society in the new Jerusalem was marked by an environment and atmosphere which rebuked the meanness and selfishness of men.

The example of Nehemiah is worthy of careful study in the life of present-day men and problems. A few Nehemiahs in our modern American life might accomplish equal miracles of reconstruction and redemption, for it is worth while to note the Nehemiahs succeeded in his task.

His work illustrates what can be done by a determined people, well organized and guided, and brought into relationships of mutual defense and united action.

cent, are voted "no" in answer to the question: "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt 'New Deal' to date?"

Last week's percentage for the New Deal was computed as 44.11 which indicates a fractional gain for the Administration's policy in the present tabulation.

Initial returns are reported this week from California, Massachusetts and South Dakota, which are voting against the New Deal, and Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, which show majorities in favor of the Roosevelt acts and policies.

The first scattered returns from Massachusetts register nearly a 4 to 1 vote against the New Deal, the heaviest negative vote of any of the eighteen states reported.

Governor of the home state of Governor Eugene Talmadge and the "other home state" of President Roosevelt, continues to show more than a 2 to 1 vote for the New Deal. Tennessee ranks next with better than a 3 to 2 majority for the administration's policies.

The current balloting shows nine of the twelve states reported in last week's tabulation with a fractional to fair gain in their respective voting against the New Deal.

The final returns for the entire country in a similar poll which The Literary Digest conducted in the spring of 1934 indicated that more than 3 out of every 5 voters favored the New Deal then.

Cage Practice to Start on Monday

Four Lettermen Back for Bobcats' 1935-36 Basketball Season

Coach Fay Hammons announced Friday that basketball practice at Hope High School would start Monday afternoon.

With four lettermen returning and a flock of new material expected to report, prospects are bright for a winning team this season.

Lettermen expected to report are Reese and Turner, regular forwards last year, Stone and Cargile, guards.

Coach Hammons faces the task of replacing Kennedy, center and England, guard, lost through graduation.

The Bobcat mentor said that he would possibly convert Reese into a center to make room for Ramsey, star forward, who was declared ineligible last season.

With his shift, a possible first team would be: Turner and Ramsey, forwards; Reese, center; Stone and Cargile, guards.

Vasco Bright, who made a name for himself in football this season, may possibly turn his hand to basketball. A number of other candidates are expected to make bids for the team.

Several county teams will be played within the next two weeks, but the major schedule will not get underway until after the Christmas holidays.

Coach Hammons plans to bring some of the best cage teams in the state here. He has written the following schools for games:

Hot Springs, Pine Bluff, Texarkana, North Little Rock, DeQueen, Waldo, Magnolia, Warren, Ashdown, and Fordyce.

Coach Hammons built up a formidable team last season that fought its way into the finals of the district tournament, only to be nosed out for the title by Texarkana.

Proposition Rumored
NEW YORK.—(AP)—The New York Journal says Friday that Governor Harold G. Hoffman made his midnight visit to Bruno Richard Hauptmann's death-cell with the hope of obtaining a confession from the convicted kidnaper-slayer of the Lindbergh baby.

The New Jersey governor, the Journal says, gave Hauptmann a week to consider an offer of $10,000 and life imprisonment for a complete confession, then confronted the condemned man in the Trenton death-house only to hear Hauptmann plead again: "I am innocent."

The Governor's Visit
NEW YORK.—(AP)—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, a member of the "Court of Mercy" that may be Bruno Richard Hauptmann's last hope, disclosed Thursday that he had interviewed the condemned Lindbergh baby kidnaper in the Trenton (N. J.) death house.

Prison attaches said it was the first time in their recollection that the state's executive had visited a condemned prisoner.

The interview, which took place one night early in October, was carried out in such secrecy that only Warden Mark O. Kimberling and the two principals knew of it. The warden said he stood at a distance and did not hear the conversation which lasted more than an hour.

Governor Hoffman also disclosed that he had urged the seven other members of the Court of Pardons to call on Hauptmann and "learn his side of the case at first hand."

William S. Conklin, the governor's press aide, said:

"The governor pointed out that the Court of Pardons is a court of mercy, and he believes that every member of the court should hear Hauptmann's story first-hand at the prison because he cannot be brought before the court."

The Court of Pardons would be Hauptmann's last resort if his appeal is rejected by the United States Supreme Court.

"Beyond saying that Hauptmann had 'pleaded his complete innocence,'" Governor Hoffman declined to divulge details. He denied he was conducting a private investigation of the case.

"Some people have been working in the matter," he said, "but I am not at liberty to discuss it."

It became known, however, that Ellis Parker, chief of Burlington county (N. J.) detectives, has been continuing his investigation and has kept the governor posted on new developments.

Governor Hoffman took office January 1, 1935, a few days before Hauptmann went on trial charged with the several cases where local option elections are planned, or where business has not been as good as was expected dealers have expressed a desire to discontinue business at the end of the year.

Revenue Commissioner Earl R. Wiseman asked for an opinion as to whether he had authority to cancel the permits at the expiration of a half year, or whether he should undertake to collect the fee for the remaining half, regardless of whether the dealer remained in business. The opinion said it was not the intention of the law to compel liquor dealers to remain in business when they desired to withdraw.

Returns for 1934, Commissioner Guy T. Helving reported, amounted to 3,988,269 of which 1,750,843 were taxable. Total net income shown was $12,456,262,491, which was $1,610,698,959 greater than the previous year, while the tax liability was $506,481,123, greater by $133,513,362 than in 1933. The tax liability was an average rate of 4.07 per cent on the net income reported, statisticians estimated.

The returns, first filed under the revenue act of 1934 which sought to tighten loopholes in the income tax laws, reflect the new normal and surtax rates, the altered credit allowable, the new definition of capital assets, and the new limits of gains and losses from sales or exchange of such assets.

The number of individual returns, by income classes, follows:

New Hope

Glenn Haisfield and Truman Arrington visited friends at Morris the past week.

Mrs. Leroy Head of El Dorado, Mrs. W. D. Watkins and Mrs. Reece Arrington of Washington, called on Mrs. D. P. Watkins Saturday afternoon.

Hendrix Hulsey of Hope was visiting in this community Sunday.

Dexter Alfred called on Clifford Cox Sunday.

Canley Polk, James Murphy, Vick Alexander and Lester Watkins were hunting on Bear creek last Thursday.

Friends are glad to know that A. J. Arrington, who has been ill for some time is improving nicely.

Sunday school begins at 10:30 each Sunday, everyone is invited to come and take part in studying Kods word.

DINNY'S FAMILY ALBUM

FLYING LIZARDS

PROBABLY THE MOST BIZARRE DEVELOPMENT ATTAINED BY THE SAURIANS, DURING THE AGE OF REPTILES, WAS THAT OF THE FLYING LIZARDS. MOST OF THESE REPTILIAN INVADERS OF THE AERIAL DOMAIN WERE QUITE SMALL, AS IS THE SPECIMEN ILLUSTRATED HERE. HOWEVER, ONE GROUP KNOWN AS PTERANODONS, GREW TO BE ENORMOUS - WITH A WING-SPREAD OF NEARLY THIRTY FEET. WHILE OUR PRESENT DAY BIRDS UNDOUBTEDLY ARE OF REPTILIAN ORIGIN, THE FLYING LIZARDS POSITIVELY WERE NOT A STEP IN THEIR EVOLUTION.
